Notes: The upper left panel depicts the point estimate of the exposure of the return on the German banking sector index to the returns on the German market index. The solid blue line indicates the sensitivity from a rolling window regression (time window 120 months) and the dashed black line gives the average sensitivity. The upper right panel of the figure presents the exposure to SMB, the lower left panel the exposure to HML, and the lower right panel the exposure to WML